Back Story

Pete comes from a family of three children raised by parents who were often chaotic and who struggled financially causing a lot of arguments.

Pete and Malik attended the same secondary school. They are known to each other although do not interact much now due to their different lifestyles.

Due to his homelife, Pete often spent time outside of the home at his grandmother's home who provided him with warmth and stability. Pete's grandmother passed away from a sudden illness when he was 13 years old. Pete no longer had somewhere to go to escape the chaos of homelife.

Pete started to struggle with his emotions and school became difficult for him; he started to get into trouble for not paying attention. Pete felt misunderstood and singled out by his teachers.

He started to hang around with an older crowd in the local area. They gave Pete somewhere to go when he needed to get away from home, food when he was hungry, and he was ecstatic to be given a fresh pair of the latest trainers just because he was their friend.

Very quickly, things started to change, and Pete was expected to pay back. He was told to sell drugs and would go missing from home for weeks at a time.

Pete worked his way through various positions within the gang to eventually being the elder. Pete now controls operations and will have youngers who deal drugs for him.
